CANCER OF TONGUE! A CASE RESEMBLING THAT OF GENE-

Virginia, will shortly be issued by J. W. Randolph & English, publishers. The book is from the pen of Major H. Some ten years ago I had a scrottleus sore on my right hand which gave me great trouble, and under the old-time treatment was healed up, and I supposed I was well. I found, however, it had only been driven into the system by the use of potash and mercury, and in March. 1882, it broke out in my threat, and concentrated in what some of the doctors denominated cancer. I was piaced under treatment for this disease, some s'x or seven of the beet physicians in the country land me at different times under their charge, among them three specialists in this line; but one after another would exhaust their skill and drop me, for i grew worse continually. The cancer had eaten through my cheek, destroying the roof of my mouthand upper lip; then attacked my tongue, painte, and lower lip, destroying the posice and under lip softrely and half my forage, painte, and lower lip, destroying the posice and under lip softrely and half my forage and under the soft my mouth to the left eye. From a hearty robust woman of 15c pounds, I was reduced to a mere frame of skin and bones, simust innable to turn myself in bed. I could not take. The angulsh of mid and the horrible sniferings of body which I experienced nover can be revealed. Given up by physicals in fact, my husband would place his hand on me every now and then to see whether I was aftee or not, and at one time all decided that life was explicit, and my destinate that life was explicit, and my destinate of the first of last Getober (1884), when my friends commenced giving me Swift's Specific. I am a wonder and a ware leaded in the lips of last fact of last was a special and healing commenced, and it seems that nature is supplying a new tongue. I can talk so that now the first of last forcover when my friends can readily understand B. McClellan, assistant adjutant-general and chief of staff of the cavalry corps of the Army of Northern Vir-ginia. Major McClellan is a Pennsyl-vanian by birth, but at the time the war between the States broke out he was living in Virginia, teaching school. He had married a Virginia girl and he at once linked his fortunes with the cause of the South and entered the army as private in a cavalry company. Colonel Thomas H. Owens made him adjutant of the Third cavalry, and he was after-wards made chief of staff of the cavalry. He served throughout the war with Stuart, and no man is better qualifled to tell of the valiant deeds of the cavalry and the chivalrous acts of the great Confederate cavalryman than Major McClellan. The contents of the book are summa rized as follows: Shows the ancestry boyhood, and youth of Stuart; his life in Texas and on the frontier; the John Brown raid, and the thrilling incidents of the late war in which the great cav alry commander took such a leading part.

The author at one time thought of having the book published by Mr. Carlton McCarthy. Mr. McCarthy

RALEIGH'S NEWSY BUDGET.

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.] RALEIGH, N. C., October 13 .- The excessively bad weather of yesterday caused alarm for the prospects of the State Fair. To-day the weather became fine, and the attendance was airly large. The exhibit is decidedly meritorious, though not so large as on some past occasions. There are few super-ficial attractions, and the stock and the agricultural products are the main features. Secretary Nichols had worked for the success of the Fair in what was confessedly an off year, following the Exposition. President T. M. Holt is present, as is also Chief-Marshal Hal M. Worth and his assistant marshals. Music is furnished by the Goldsboro' Cornet Band. The attendance to-morrow and Thursday promises to be large. The Democratic State Central Comhe was thrown off. The body was found on the track very much mangled.

The rumor is current that since the recent lynching at Pittsboro' two negroes have fled from that place, and there is an opinion that they were guilty of complicity in the murders there. The press of the State continues to condemn the lynching at Pittsboro', and nothing of the kind has ever provoked such hearty and general con-but one or two parcels of superior quality of last season's import found sale at about their original valuations. and for such tobacco, we think, the market may be considered quite firm The sampling of the new import has scarcely made sufficient progress to enable us to judge of quality or make a comparison with old stock. Expectations, we think, are not raised very high, so we may be agreeably disap pointed. We cannot say this, however, of the new Missouri leaf, of which a good deal has been sampled here and in other markets, and there can be no doubt that, with rare exceptions, the class of tobacco is very unsuited to the wants of our trade. We suppose that scarcity of leaf will force into consumption much that at other times would be entirely ne glected—at least, we hope so. But shippers will probably be convinced that our manufacturers have no use for Missouri leaf at a price to make it worth while to repeat the experiment. Other kinds of Burley have sold in a retail way, but it is very difficult to make any money on cost. We look forward to a fairly active trade this winter. Buyers are not likely, with present crop prospects in America, to gain much by delay, while the supply of really desirable tobacco offering will, we expect, be rather limited. QUOTATIONS.

PITTSBURGH, PA., October 13.—

Thomas Bingham, of McKeesport, Pa., came home intoxicated last night, and because his wife refused to give him money for more liquor he knocked their six-months-old baby out of her arms and heat the woman until she fell unand beat the woman until she fell un-conscious to the floor. He then sprang on her, and jumped up and down on her chest until life was almost extinct. Hearing people coming he fled, and has not yet been arrested. Mrs. Bingham is still living, but no hopes are entertained for her recovery. The wildest game in the world is the Rocky Mountain ram. The animal is more like the chamois than any other creature. In Colorado a law has just gone into force prohibiting the killing of the rams for ten years to come.
